

If you donate direct to Native Animal Rescue, simply advise us, in writing, of your wish to cease giving.

If you are giving outside of a workplace giving program, each July we will provide you with a summary of the amount that you have given for your tax purposes and re-confirm your donation arrangements for the following year.

Check our website

If you want to check out the type of native animal and other community service programs that your contributions will support, have a look at our website www.nativeanimalrescue.org.au, which is full of interesting information about who we are and what we do.

You may even want to join as a member or become a volunteer, either directly caring for the animals or helping out in a range of support roles that are essential to keep Native Animal Rescue functioning effectively.

E-Newsletter

All donors will receive copies of our E-newsletter that is circulated every second month, to keep you informed of the work at Native Animal Rescue.

Contact us

If you would like us to arrange to come to your workplace to share the program with you and your work colleagues, call us on (08) 9249 3434, or email us at enquiries@nativeanimalrescue.org.au and we can discuss how to best do that.

If you simply want to talk to us to get more information, or would like to visit us to have a look at the work we do, please call us to arrange a suitable time.

If you just turn up we might not be able to accommodate you on the spot, so it is best to call ahead.

TOOB XAWIK

We need your support

Native Animal Rescue (NAR) is totally dependent on donations from the public to be able to continue its valuable work with the care of sick, injured, orphaned and displaced native wildlife and its other community service programs.

NAR's Toobuxawik program is a powerful way for you to financially help us care for WA's unique native animals and it is simple – you just donate two bucks a week to Native Animal Rescue's work and we do the rest.

Of course, we are not going to knock you back, if you wish to commit to more than two dollars a week, $2 is a minimum—we would love you to commit to more.

Let's do the sums

Two bucks a week is not much, in fact it is less than you would spend to buy an ice-cream or a coffee, but it can be very powerful.

If you join the program, at $2 per week, you will donate over $100 a year to support our work with native wildlife.

Again that may not sound much towards saving our native wildlife, but if just a thousand people do the same, that is over $100,000 per year towards the work of Native Animal Rescue and that makes a massive difference to the amount of critically important work we can undertake to help our native animals.

Just think what we could be doing, if just 5% of the people in WA joined the program. That would generate some $10 million dollars a year towards saving our threatened species and providing safe habitat for them.

The Government chips in

Because your donations are tax deductible, the good news is that you do not end up paying the full two dollars.

Because we are a registered tax deductible gift recipient charity, the Australian Government dips into its pocket and shares the cost with you at your highest tax rate.

If you are paying tax at the top tax rate, the government pays almost half of the amount to which you commit.

See how powerful such a small amount can become!

Not only do we get a significant amount of funding to support our work with native animals, but you have the opportunity to direct the Australian Government in how it spends some of your taxes.

It's not often you can do that!

Compatible with workplace giving

If your employer is already operating or is prepared to implement a work place giving program and includes Native Animal Rescue in that program, you can simply nominate us as your charity and the amount you wish to donate each pay.

The funds will be deducted prior to you being paid your salary and depending on how much you pay and your salary level, you get the tax saving immediately.

If you do not get the tax relief immediately, you will definitely get it at tax return time.

Your employer will then forward, after each pay period, the amount deducted from you and all your other colleagues who are supporting Native Animal Rescue.

Or you can do it alone

If it is not possible for you to be involved in a workplace giving program, we can issue a receipt for your donations and you simply claim the donations at tax time and the Government gives you back its share by reducing the tax payable by you.

We can work out a system of payment options that best suit you, as either monthly, quarterly, half yearly or annual payments.

Simply complete the form indicating how much you wish to donate and at what frequency then set up a periodic deduction with your bank to forward the money to us at the frequency you choose.

Alternatively, if you prefer, we can send you a reminder when your next payment is due.

You are not locked in forever

You can withdraw from the Toobuxawik program at any time.

We understand that circumstances and interests can change and that you need the flexibility to withdraw, if your circumstances change.

If you donate through a workplace giving program, there will be procedures in place within that program determining when and how you can withdraw.
